DETAILED ACTION

Priority

Applicant's claim for the benefit of a prior-filed application under 35 U.S.C. 119(e) or under 35 U.S.C. 120, 121, or 365(c) is acknowledged. Applicant has not complied with one or more conditions for receiving the benefit of an earlier filing date under 35 U.S.C. 119 as follows:

The later-filed application must be an application for a patent for an invention which is also disclosed in the prior application (the parent or original nonprovisional application or provisional application). The disclosure of the invention in the parent application and in the later-filed application must be sufficient to comply with the requirements of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112. See Transco Products, Inc. v. Performance Contracting, Inc., 38 F.3d 551, 32 USPQ2d 1077 (Fed. Cir. 1994).

The disclosure of the prior-filed application, Application No. 60/255,603, fails to provide adequate support or enablement in the manner provided by the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112 for one or more claims of this application. The disclosure of the prior filed application does not provide support for the limitation "wherein the second material comprises rigid particles which are dispersed homogeneously throughout at least a portion of the first material."

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

1. Claim 59 recites the limitation "the polymer" in line 5. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-6, 22-24, 55-57, 59 and 60 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Arias et al (US 2002/0133129).

Arias et al disclose a device comprising a plurality of microneedles having length between 10 and 500 microns and widths between 10 and 500 microns (paragraph 0089) extending from a substrate formed of a first and second material, wherein the second material forms a portion of the microneedle and enhances the mechanical strength of the microneedle compared to microneedles formed without the second material (wherein it is the Examiner's opinion that it is inherent that any device comprising an additional second material will increase that device's strength compared to that when the device is only made of the one material); the first or second material being polyurethane (paragraph 0127), an non-biodegradable polymer (polydimethylsiloxene - paragraph 0076), or a metal (paragraph 0054).

3. Claims 1, 7-9, 12, and 55-61 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Dalton et al (US 2005/0197308).

Dalton et al disclose a device comprising a plurality of microneedles formed of a first and second material, the first material comprising a polymer, and wherein the second material forms a portion of the microneedle and enhances the mechanical strength of the microneedle compared to microneedles formed without the second material (wherein it is the Examiner's opinion that it is inherent that any device comprising an additional second material will increase that device's strength compared to that when the device is only made of the one material); wherein the second material is a vaccine which is released from the microneedle (abstract).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 3/23/2009 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues that the Dalton and Arias references do not qualify as prior art because they do not have earlier effective filing dates than the present application. Examiner disagrees. As stated above, the prior filed provisional application which the present application claims priority to does not provide support for the independent claims, and so the effective filing date of the present application is considered 12/14/2001, and not the filing date of the provisional application.
